river, floundering knee-deep in the loose sand, stumbling wildly at every step, and crossed to the opposite bank. It mounted it and breasted the opposite hill. Its rider no longer tried to stop it, but contented himself with sitting tight lest in the roughness of the road a false step or stumble should unseat him. He knew the race would soon end, for the hill was steep and would quickly take the heart out of the worst bolter.

And the end came far sooner than expected. The creature's gait slackened abruptly. The poor beast stumbled, fell upon its knees, scrambled to its feet again and stood tottering. Guy barely had time to fling himself out of the saddle before its legs gave way under it again, and it fell in a heap and rolled over on its side.

For a few moments he stood looking down at the heaving body in silent wonder and astonishment. It was plain to see that the creature was in awful agony, for its breath came in hoarse gasps that were almost groans. And presently, while he still stared, there came a series of spasmodic kicks. They only lasted a few seconds, then the body suddenly contracted with a jolt, only to be relaxed a moment later as though operated with a spring. Then the quivering muscles became rigid and still, and the beast was dead.

Here was a fine predicament. He had already come fifteen miles of his journey, with twenty-four still to go.

He knelt down and loosened the saddle and removed the bridle. To get the former away it was necessary to move round to the other side of the body. Suddenly, in passing the hind-quarters, he stooped. A long, straight stick was fast in the creature's hams. Its point was so deeply buried it took a considerable pull to release it. In withdrawing it the flesh tore away too, and he saw that the point was viciously barbed. He held it up and examined it closely. The end in his hand was feathered. It was an arrow.

He flung the weapon aside. "A bushman's arrow," he murmured, "and poisoned!" He looked back over the road he had just traveled. Then his eyes came back to the dead horse and rested on the saddle. He stooped and pulled it from the creature's back, and, carrying it off the road, hid it in the adjacent bush. There was nothing left him but to turn back the way he had come.

At the thought he remembered and his fury blazed. "Turn back!" That was what the note had said. And now he was obeying the command he had so angrily flouted. It was a bitter pill to swallow. "Turn back!" Fifteen miles to tramp at Fernan Elwood's bidding.

Bids Called For.

Sealed bids will be received by the Commissioner of Streets, Alleys and Public Property from 12 o'clock noon on the 20th day of December, 1910, for the construction of sidewalks not at present constructed in the following district, to-wit:

Fifth Avenue, N. W., from Via duct on same street to E Street, N. W. Ordered June 8, 1909. Readvertised on the 20th day of November, 1909.

A certified check for $25.00 made in the name of W. R. Burnitt must accompany the bid for each street as a guarantee that the successful bidder will execute the contract and furnish a satisfactory bond for the faithful performance of the work according to contract. The said certified checks will be returned to all unsuccessful bidders and to the successful bidder upon the furnishing of the satisfactory bond as aforesaid.

Specifications may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer.

Note.

This district was not bid on under the last advertisement as the statement was made that all work on this street had been let at private contract, but some of the property owners having failed to comply with their agreement, the City here undertakes to complete the district.

W. R. BURNITT, Commissioner Streets, Alleys and Public Property.

AUCTION FINDS VALUABLE WILL

TESTAMENT READ TO BREATHLESS JERSEYMAN—WAS IN $4 WAGON.

Burlington, N. J., Dec. 5.—Discovery of the long-lost will of the late Schuyler Rainier, the rich and eccentric old farmer of Florence township, this afternoon, gave a romantic turn to the fight of heirs of the large estate. The finding of the will at the public sale of Rainier's property ordered by the administrator created excitement among the farmers and townspeople gathered there.

The sale was at its height when Harry Bishop, inspecting Rainier's old market wagon which he had just bought for $4, found an old book stuffed between the ribs and canvas of the wagon covers. "Rainier's customer book," said Bishop to his companion, idly turning the closely written pages. A paper fell from between the leaves and fluttered to the ground.

Bishop picked it up, read a few lines and with a cry of "The will!" dashed for the house, where the lawyers in charge of the estate were overseeing the sale.

Bishop turned over the papers to Attorney Robert S. Gaskill, who with Senator G. W. Lewis, was named administrator of the estate by the court. Oddly enough the old will was found to have named him as one of the executors. The other is Lambert Rainier, Jr. Gaskill at once read the will aloud to the crowd to whom it furnished a sensation, fitting well with the manner in which Rainier has kept in the public eye.

Since two years ago this month the little iron saw in which he kept as much as $20,000 in gold was robbed by a daylight burglar, who was caught in Chicago after a neighbor had been arrested and falsely accused of the crime.

The will was dated April 22, 1909, and, as far as could be learned tonight, it is signed by but one witness, Lambert Rainier, whose death occurred four months after the date of the document.

Lawyers admit the finding of the will opens the way to a warm legal fight, as it has little in common with the division as now arranged among the direct and indirect heirs.

To several nieces it leaves $3,000 each. To Jane Nixon, Rainier's aged housekeeper, and to Samuel Richardson, his 32-year-old farm helper, are given $1,000 each.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by all dealers.

Boys' Corn Clubs.

All merchants and farmers and business men who want to stimulate the corn clubs by offering prizes are requested to write the Ardmoreite, stating the prizes they offer.

Donors in Carter county will be for Carter county prizes, those from Love county will be for prizes in that county, and the same in Jefferson, Johnston, Marshall and Murray and any other counties that desire to get busy. The prizes will be run indefinitely in the columns of this paper to stimulate the work. The Daily Ardmoreite for one full year will be sent to the winner in each county who offers their prizes through the Ardmoreite.

Notice of Sale.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to a judgment of the District Court for Carter County, State of Oklahoma in the case of John Threadgill versus R. F. Turner, made and entered on the 19th day of February, 1910, in which the plaintiff recovered judgment against the defendant for the sum of $376.75 and judgment foreclosing mortgage upon the following described property, to-wit:

The NE 1/4 of SW 1/4 of Section 34, Township 2 South, Range 2 West, containing forty acres; also the NW 1/4 of the NE 1/4 of SE 1/4 of Section 23, Township 2 South, Range 1 East, containing thirty acres, more or less; also the NE 1/4 of the NE 1/4 of the SW 1/4 of Section 23, Township 2 South, Range 1 East of the Indian Base and Meridian containing thirty acres more or less and for a sale of said property to satisfy said judgment and an order of sale issued thereon the 14th day of November, 1910, commanding me to advertise and sell said above described property, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the above described property at 2 o'clock p. m. on the 31st day of December, 1910, in front of the court house building, in the City of Ardmore, Carter County, Oklahoma. One Magazine and One Newspaper are indispensable to every person of intelligence.

The "one magazine" is CURRENT LITERATURE, because it alone sweeps the whole field of human thought and action in both hemispheres.

It contains a monthly review of the world's news; quotations from and comments on the press of the world; numerous graphic cartoons and other illustrations; photographs and biographic sketches of the conspicuous personalities of the month; the most recent advances in science and discovery; the noteworthy events in religion, literature and art; critical reviews of the best fiction, dramatic and musical works; a page of the best humor and a condensation of the leading play of the month.

It gathers impartially from every field of human thought and activity those facts which are best worth knowing and gives the reader a clear, well defined and illuminating view of what the whole world is doing.

CURRENT LITERATURE for One Year $3.00 Both for THE DAILY ARDMOREITE for One Year $6.00 $6.50
